

Ex-Offender Expo Postponed From May Is Happening Today

July 30, 2013

The city's ex-offender expo, which was supposed to happen in May but ... uh ... people showed up has been rescheduled for today and is happening right about now. The fair "will host up to 100 employers and service providers. Workshops include workforce development, mock interviewing, and acing a face-to-face interview. R.I.S.E. will have a cyber café on site, with volunteers and staff assisting participants in filling out applications and creating email addresses. The organization will also host a literacy walk with representation from the Mayor's Commission on Literacy." There's no word on if the city is more prepared for a higher volume of people, or if they're just hoping less of them show up.
